Contaminated Water.

It seems particularly sad that a company of innocent little children, celebrating the close of school with a picnic, should suffer such unhappy results as did a merry crowd of St. Johnsbury boys and girls. The two rooms on Maple street, about 75 children in all, had a picnic when school closed and it has since developed that the spring at the end of Caledonia street from which they drank must have been contaminated for there are now 12 cases of typhoid fever among the children who attended the picnic. A few of the children were violently ill directly after the picnic, but soon recovered, and the 12 cases of fever have been coming down in succession for two or more weeks. Two cases are in Canada, one in Littleton and one was taken sick in Portland and brought home. So far only two cases have been severe, those of George Asselin and Dow Farnham and both are improving.

Tuesday the village trustees and health officer examined the spot and will extend the sewer 30 rods to empty into the river.
